DESCRIPTION

Whoever sees this object pass by, is left in awe. In this model, the vehicle's traits of seaworthiness and velocity merge together to experience the sea in a special way, where the areas of conviviality and relax, both on deck and under deck, are studied to grant maximal comfort. The hull of the BS 160 allows to take long-distance journeys and to enjoy ravines of the coast with very low sea-beds pushing the bow to the sand, thanks to its limited draught.

This outboard version, with the ability to have higher power propulsions given by brand new Mercury 600hp engines, allows emphasizing speed and seaworthiness performance. The deck provides more areas destined to conviviality. The dinette zone, under the large roof covering all its surface, presents wide furniture that responds to any demands on deck, with a fridge, sink, kitchen and stowage. The dinette itself can be equipped with a table to serve a great number of guests. The bow is an enormous surface for relax that can be converted into a large circular sofa or an enormous deckchair or lunch area. The floors of the deck, at a height close to the waterline, are combined with access to the sea granted by passages on the sides and aft. This vehicle, a concentrate of unique features, offers confidence and reliability to whomever uses and controls it from the equipped and dominant steering control. It is reliable and simple also for the less experienced, as it is easy to manage in the open seas as well as when maneuvering in port.
